

To Whom it May Concern

Sean Dickens of Bart Consulting has been a part of my network of trusted advisors since March 2010.

When it comes to optimising the capacity and use of MYOB, Sean is the guru. His depth of knowledge and skill in knowing how to apply it in a variety of businesses, is unmatched.

One of the key factors in my profession as a Business Coach, is working with business owners to achieve the results they want from their business. We need the ability to interpret their profit and loss and balance sheet so they can drive their business forward. Sean is able to take what seems to be a complex amount of data and transform it into meaningful information without confusing the client.

Apart from his expertise in working with MYOB, Sean has experience in a variety of non-standard software Applications. His skill and expertise far exceeds anyone I have ever met in his industry. His ability to effortlessly integrate information from a variety of sources and eliminate unnecessary work cuts business costs. No matter what the challenge, Sean's experience in areas such as manufacturing, retail, and professional services, enables him to find the right solution for capturing, managing and utilising financial information.

Sean's work ethic and standard of work are as equally as high as his technical knowledge. Sean has worked with both myself and clients of Injoy Coaching Firm. Sean's delivery is exemplary. His approach is that of honesty and integrity and he can be trusted to deliver on time, exceeding customer expectations.

For anyone considering engaging Sean, I would certainly be recommending his services and encourage them to contact me personally should they have any concerns.
